

FROM THE FIRING LINE SCHOOLS OF THE PAST

GEORGE LE MESNAGER WRITES OF THE FIGHTING AROUND VERDUN

One of the sons of France, who is an American citizen, but who has fought for the sister republic since the war with Germany began, writes from the vicinity of Verdun an interesting letter to Raphael Verdugo, of 219 E. Tenth street, Tropic. Mr. Le Mesnager fought through the Franco-Prussian war in 1870 and the moment the present attack on France originated he went back to offer his service to his native country. He was promoted to be sergeant and has fought all through the campaign from the retreat on Paris to the battle of the Marne, the fighting on the Aisne and the final great defense of Verdun. It is reported that he was recently wounded there but that he has recovered and is again in the fighting line.

He writes: My dear friend Raphael: I wanted to write to you long ago, but I have hesitated because I have no address. I do not remember the name of the street where you live in Tropic, but I have decided to send these few words in care of the bank at Tropic, where you were doing your business at one time and I hope that this letter will reach you in time so that if something should happen to me you will know that I have not forgotten my friend Raphael.

It is now going on nearly two years since I went away. I did not expect that it would last so long, but for reasons that I cannot tell you in this letter, but that I will tell you later if I ever come back, it had to be so. You see we are not allowed to say anything about this war, for fear that the other side may get information about our movements and on that account every letter written by the soldiers is opened.

I may nevertheless tell you that the fighting is going on more fiercely every day and that the blood is running in rivers. It never stops night or Sundays, but we are on top and the war is on its last legs and victory—final—will soon be ours. I have been spared so far and expect with God's will that I will come out of this furnace with my skin and that very soon it will all be over, and that I will return home to dear Los Angeles and California.

Your faithful friend,
GEORGE LE MESNAGER.

OPENS LAW OFFICE

C. C. Downing, a young attorney of considerable experience, who came to this section of the country about nine months ago, has now entered into partnership with his brother-in-law, W. T. Sprowls, of 216 S. Central avenue. Mr. Sprowls is an attorney who is widely and favorably known in this district, having come here from Oklahoma about three years ago.

Mr. Downing, who is a graduate of New York university, acquired a valuable law experience in New York city and also in Washington, D. C. The partners have now opened an office in Glendale where Mr. Downing will attend to all legal matters for clients. The Los Angeles office is 326 Washington building and that end of the business is now, as formerly, under the able direction of Mr. W. T. Sprowls.

Mr. Downing, who intends to make Glendale his permanent home, and is at present resident with his brother-in-law, at 216 S. Central avenue, was recently appointed secretary of the Charter committee of Glendale, which is engaged in gathering data for the preparation of a charter for this city. He expects to take an increasing interest in all civic matters.

SIX YEARS OLD

Master W. Louis Middleworth, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Middleworth of 120 West Fifth St., celebrated his sixth birthday Saturday by entertaining a number of his little kindergarten classmates. The decorations were of Cecil Bruner roses and the favors were of tiny pink May Baskets filled with candies and studded with pink ribbons. Mrs. Middleworth was assisted in entertaining the little guests by little Miss Shirley Chase, and all the delights of a birthday party were enjoyed by the youngsters. The little men and women present were Mary Alice Ross, Lucille Wilde, Rebecca Brant, Evelyn Peebles, Nellie Jensen, Lorene Palmer, James Edmonds, Philip and William Garth, Frank Arnold, Leslie Rice and Ralph Shaw.

MRS. J. J. BANTA GIVES TALES OF EARLY INDIANA DAYS

One of Mrs. J. J. Banta's Indiana friends recently sent her an article that appeared in the Indianapolis Star, which she thinks, if excerpted, might be of some interest to the many Indiana people who are resident in Glendale. Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Banta, of 909 Broadway, are themselves familiar with the scenes spoken of in this article. The Walter S. Smith, of Marion County, who tells of the early school days of that county, is an old acquaintance of theirs.

Mr. Walter S. Smith says: "When I served as county examiner the salary was $4 a day. I was a young man and as I had no family I felt that I could afford to take the office, although the law provided that there should be no perquisites whatever. I could not even charge the customary dollar for the examination of a candidate for teacher's license. I was the choice of the county auditor."

"William A. Bell, my predecessor, had been a good examiner. I began my career in June, 1873, and my first office room was that of the state superintendent, in the second story of the old Gallup block on Tennessee street, as Capitol avenue was then called. My work did not then include the oversight of the city schools, but I did have the oversight of all the schools in the country neighborhood and villages."

"We had just passed the period of log schoolhouses and the last one disappeared when my period of service began. The trustees living then had, in some instances, built all the schools in their respective townships. Samuel Corey of Lawrence township built all the schoolhouses in his district so that the pupils might face the north. His idea was to familiarize them with the facts of their maps, and the idea was a good one. In nine townships there were about 120 houses, most of them frames with but a single room each. Several brick schoolhouses were built during my administration. The largest number of teachers at one time under my supervision was 120, and for the first time in the county's history the number of women teachers was equal to that of the sterner sex."

"Before this it had been seriously doubted whether women ought to try to teach, as they would not be able to flog the bigger boys. Flogging was supposed to be part of the process and men were preferred who were able to do this duty properly."

"Afterward I began to think more of teaching and less of punishment. I taught ten years without striking a blow. My office duties were chiefly centered on the efficient work of the teachers. I examined all who applied for license, visited the schools, decided contested points of polity, attended the institutes, and looked after the moral welfare of the children. There were about 6000 children enumerated as pupils in the country and village districts."

"Parents frequently interfered with the work of the grades. One would object to his child getting a geography book; another refused to let his daughter learn grammar. He expected them, he said, to marry farmers and a farmer's wife could not possibly have need of a knowledge of grammar. He was the leading man in his district and his rebellion would have affected others. I went to see him and after some argument he said, 'Get 'em a grammar if it's all right.'"

The narrator goes on to tell how he gradually organized the school district amid some opposition. Many of the teachers seeing how ugly their reports of constant punishment looked on paper began to dispense with flogging and soon the practice was practically eliminated. Decorum cards were introduced and other innovations which met with fierce resentment from the farming community in some cases because they believed that all this "increased the taxes."

Mr. Smith goes on to tell some of the amusing answers to examination questions. They are all of the old variety though amusing and they could be matched by answers from the New York schools of the present day. Under Mr. Smith's guidance the schools prospered and the people began to take a profound interest in the work. Gradually was built up the present effective system which is equal to that of any other State.

WHAT IS A BLOTTER?

Mrs. Ella Richardson writes that the blotter received in the Evening News reminds her of a conundrum: "What is a blotter? The thing you look for while the ink is drying."

AMERICAN TROOPS AFTER MEXICAN BANDITS

TEXAS CATTLEMEN AND RANCHERS OFFER THEIR SERVICES TO CHASTISE THE INVADERS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

ALPINE, Texas, May 8.—American troops are being rushed through the barren and mountainous waste that is to be found in the Big Bend section, in pursuit of the Mexican raiders who attacked the American settlements, Glen Springs, Boquillas and Deemers, Saturday morning, killing three American soldiers and a boy ten years old, and capturing and carrying off two other Americans, who it is feared have been killed. The whole of Brewster county is in a white hot rage and cattlemen and ranchers are pressing to the border. They say they will go after the bandits themselves.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 8.—Two troops of the Fourteenth cavalry and some other details from the Eighth cavalry detained this morning at Marathon and crossed the border in hot pursuit of the bandits who killed the American soldiers at Glenn Springs. They have been ordered to trap the raiders at any cost. It is believed that the bandits' rendezvous is about 100 miles from Marathon. The United States officials believe that the bandits can be overtaken.

WILSON WILL NOT MOVE FOR PEACE

PRESIDENT LEARNS THAT ALLIES WILL NOT LISTEN TO TALK OF ENDING WAR AT PRESENT JUNCTURE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—President Wilson will not move to urge negotiations for peace at the present juncture, notwithstanding the many Teutonic suggestions conveyed to the White House that now is a most appropriate time for the United States to urge peace. The president, acting on the advice of the American ambassadors in London and Paris, who state that the Allies will not entertain any peace talk until their promised great spring offensive has been launched, will make no move in the direction of peace.

SAY GERMAN ATTACKS ARE FOR PRESTIGE

FRENCH MILITARY AUTHORITIES INSIST TEUTONS PERSIST AT VERDUN FOR EFFECT AT HOME

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, May 10.—Military authorities here who are fairly well acquainted with conditions in Germany state that the latest German attacks on Verdun were carried out to impress the people at home, where general discontent with the non-effectiveness of the German campaign is having a serious effect. The people, seeing the incessant stream of wounded men and scanning the belated death lists are growing into the idea that the stories of great victories are mere fabrications. To return from Verdun would mean to confess defeat, hence the fighting is being pursued there with renewed temporary vigor.

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, May 8.—By a brilliant attack this morning the French recaptured 500 yards of trenches on both sides of the Meuse. These trenches were part of the positions taken by the Germans in their latest gigantic drive. The French also drove the Germans out of the positions recently taken by them on the lower slope of Hill 304, which is considered the key of the Verdun position.

UNITED STATES ASKS CARRANZA TO ACT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—The United States has made strong representations to Carranza, impressing on him that he must do something definite to put an end to raids on the United States border. It is suggested that he order a readjustment of the Mexican lines so as to cut off the bandits from the international boundary.

TREATMENT OF APHIS

COUNTY EXPERT ADVISES HANDLING THIS PEST BEFORE IT MULTIPLIES

The very prevalent custom of beginning the treatment of plant lice when it is seen that injury is being done to the plant or tree is not the best method of handling this pest, says Burr R. Jones, chief deputy horticultural commissioner of Los Angeles county. Just as soon as the aphids are found on the plants to any extent early in the season, treatment should begin. Of course if only a few of the insects are found, the growers are always in hopes that they will not become numerous enough to be of any importance. They are allowed to remain, and very soon hundreds of them are found where but one was before. The plant has grown larger also so that much more surface requires treatment to reach them all and before the numerous pests can be at all thoroughly controlled the plant is beyond recovery for the season.

My object in writing this article is to arouse every grower of tree or plant life to begin at once the treatment of this most numerous family of plant insects, even though he can find only a few of them.

In the case of cabbage plants, tomato plants, lettuce, etc., which are to be taken up from the seed bed for transplanting in the permanent truck plots, usually a few aphids can be found at transplanting time, and they may be dipped in an insecticide (being sure to wet every part of the plant above the root) and the danger of future infestation very largely eliminated. For this purpose I would recommend a strong soap suds, into 2 gallons of which a teaspoonful of 40 per cent nicotine sulphate should be stirred. I recommend this kind of tobacco extract because I can always be sure of its exact strength. There are in the market two brands. The first is known by the name given above, and the other as "Black Leaf 40." Either of these can be used in the above proportions.

This solution can be used with success for all kinds of aphids. On peas and beans, melons, cucumbers, etc., the only requirement is treatment begun early enough. If it is not begun until the aphids begin to injure the plant, the prospect of successful treatment is very slight and such treatment is more expensive as the plants become larger. In addition to this treatment for aphids on beans, a dusting of very fine sulphur is often of great benefit to get rid of the minute spider mites known as red spider, which sometimes ruins the vines. This should be done usually before the pods begin to form.

On apple trees in many sections several forms of aphids have often proven very destructive and a close watch for their first appearance and prompt treatment are very important. On citrus trees while quite young or soon after being budded, the black aphid is often a serious pest and should be given attention as soon as it appears though on older trees and where the leaves have become mature, they will do little injury.

The Black Peach aphid is one of the varieties which spends part of the year out of sight beneath the surface of the ground, but when the new growth starts in the spring, particularly on the light, sandy soils of Southern California, they often appear in such numbers that the foliage for the time being is practically all killed; the tree looking as if it had been exposed to a fire except for the masses of insects which still cling to the branches.

In the places where these insects are first appearing they always seem to be more destructive than where they have been in evidence for two or three years or more, owing perhaps to the fact that lady birds, lace winged flies and other predaceous insects find and control them more readily in a place where they have been during years before.

In almost every case, however, the orchardist will be well repaid for treating them with the solution mentioned above made 1-3 stronger and applied thoroughly to the tops of the trees; about half as much of the solution as the top receives being placed in a basin about the root of the tree to be absorbed by the soil and percolate about the roots for their control there.

When once established they will perhaps never be eradicated, but a little attention will keep them in excellent control. What we said regarding black peach aphid would also apply to the wooly aphid of the ap-

DRUG PRICES ADVANCE

S. S. ELLIOTT INSTANCES PHENOMENAL RISES CAUSED BY WAR

"As the war has dragged out its devastating length the effect on the drug trade has been quite marked," said S. S. Elliott of the Glendale pharmacy, Broadway and Glendale avenue. "In the beginning there was an immediate advance in price of all coal-tar products for the very good reason that they are made in Germany where methods for their production have been perfected. It was not astonishing to find sulphonal, trional, medonal, veronal and other drugs of similar nature going up. Now the price has still further advanced as the supply is simply drawn from what was in the country. For instance five-grain tablets of veronal are 10 cents apiece."

"All the bromides have risen in price enormously, their value being now thirteen times what it was when the war opened. In like manner iodine, which chiefly comes from Russia, has risen enormously and the supply is very small. Among the apparently causeless rises is cod liver oil. The supply of raw material and a great deal of the manufactured article come from Canada. The reason for the rise in price which has advanced from $2 to $16 a gallon, is that shipping rates are enormously increased. Vessels are scarce and every one is taking advantage of the scarcity to raise freight rates. This applies to Atlantic and Pacific alike."

"Mercury is very high and still advancing. Most of the mercury comes from Germany, but that country will find at the close of the war that other sources have been discovered whence mercury can be obtained. It is known that there are immense deposits both in California and in Arizona and in Alaska there is at least one large deposit and probably many more."

"Phenolax, a compound made in Germany from phenaphthalin which is recovered from the residue of grapes after the manufacture of wine has almost entirely disappeared. Attempts are to be made to manufacture it in this country and they will probably succeed."

"Castor oil has gone up from $3.20 to $4.15 a gallon. This is probably from freight reasons. Perhaps many people will not be greatly disappointed."

"Glycerine has risen from 26 cents a pint to $1. This naturally is the direct effect of the war, glycerine being used in the manufacture of explosives. It is likely that the stimulating effect of the war on this and some other articles of pharmaceutical use will last for some time after the war is over."

"All the herbs, barks and leaves that are collected in Europe from many remote parts and brought to the great market in Amsterdam, Holland, in shape of crude drugs are practically unobtainable. The market itself is closed."

"All articles manufactured from paper have risen enormously. Hard rubber is rising constantly and naturally all drug store articles manufactured from it have risen. Tooth brushes are higher. The best brushes are manufactured from Russian hog bristles. The war has practically wiped out that industry. It would be possible to enumerate hundreds of drugs and drug store articles that have risen in price, but those mentioned will suffice to show the effect of the war on the drug trade."

ple tree. They can be treated exactly the same, being also a root inhabitant.

Sometimes damage is done to the walnut orchards, but as the trees are very large, making treatment quite extensive, probably comparatively few of the orchards could be profitably treated.

None of these insects, particularly while young, are difficult to kill if a proper spray is applied to every one. Thorough work in applying should be especially emphasized, and let me say again, be sure and begin it as early as the aphids appear at all.

Thousands of acres of melons in the Imperial valley and elsewhere, garden truck and commercial plantings of beans all over Southern California have in years past been sacrificed by the delay of the owners in giving the aphids attention and waiting until injury appeared before beginning it.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, MAY 8, 1916

GERMAN STAND ON SUBMARINE CONTROVERSY

As was anticipated the German answer to President Wilson's ultimatum is ambiguous. While the actual translation of the full text is not yet in the hands of the public so much is known as to show that the kaiser and his advisers have been exercising their verbal ingenuity, ever since President Wilson's message was received, to discover diplomatic phrases that would be susceptible of double meanings. In this way it is supposed that they intend to prolong the controversy unless President Wilson should see fit to determine that the answer is mere quibbling and as such unsatisfactory to the United States.

Looking at the message as far as it has been made public it is apparent that the sentence in which Germany declares her intention of abandoning her present method of submarine warfare as regards "merchant ships recognized by international law" is of doubtful interpretation. It is nearly certain that by that phrase Germany means to give herself a wide latitude in determining what vessels shall be sunk and what shall not.

At the same time Germany endeavors to becloud the issue by again discussing the British blockade of Germany and the illusive "freedom of the seas." It seems likely that this answer will not prove satisfactory to the United States government at Washington. What President Wilson will do about it no one can say. He and his advisers may consider it advisable to continue the discussion and may wait to see how Germany fulfills her undertaking and whether the undertaking is merely contingent on the United States doing something about the British blockade of Germany.

In spite of German reports to the contrary the British blockade of German ports must be fairly effective or Germany would not even for diplomatic purposes make so much of it. According to the terms of this note to the United States the blockade must be felt to a certain extent. However, when it suits German purposes the blockade is always declared ineffective. By recalling German statements to that effect President Wilson would, if he thought it worth while to continue the discussion any further have an effective answer to Germany's contentions. It is probably with the hope of provoking just such a dispute that the document now under discussion was so carefully framed.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the first note to Germany was dispatched May 15, 1915. It spoke of the German sinking of merchantmen and liners as a "series of events which the United States has observed with growing concern, distress and amazement." Germany answered on May 28 in a note as evasive, ironical and unsatisfactory as its latest production.

Secretary Lansing, having succeeded Mr. Bryan as secretary of state, replied to Germany's contentions that no declaration of a submarine war zone could abrogate the rights of Americans to traverse the seas in safety. It was not till July 8 that Germany replied in a note that held the submarine negotiations as a club over the head of the United States to force this government into some kind of action against Great Britain. The United States replied on July 21 declaring the German note unsatisfactory. The Arabic was sunk on Aug. 19 and a break seemed imminent. On Oct. 5, after six weeks of negotiation, Germany repudiated the sinking of the Arabic and a settlement of the controversy seemed in sight when Germany declared her intention of sinking without warning all armed merchant ships. As all merchant ships carry more or less arms this gave rise to another controversy that kept the question open.

This kept on until April 18, 1916, when President Wilson dispatched his last note, which was considered in the light of an ultimatum. To that ultimatum the present message is the German reply, which apparently still leaves the whole question undecided and makes German action contingent on the United States' attitude toward Britain. The Germans think their answer satisfactory, but the majority of the American newspapers consider the situation grave and the reply unsatisfactory. What the Washington authorities think of it will be settled in a few days.

VALUE OF PUBLIC PLAYGROUNDS

Play is natural to all healthy children. All games and exercises that bring out the clear ringing laugh of childhood and develop the healthy nature from which all care and grief and fear are banished are a gift of God. The famous Archbishop Trench, one of the great exegeses of the Church of England, a man of profound intelligence, once told how he rebuked a child for laughing in a graveyard and just at that moment a linnet began to pour forth its song perched on a tombstone. The great divine saw his error and realized that the child was more in accord with God's universe than himself.

Child life is largely developed through play. The basic idea of the kindergarten is to make a play out of what is usually made work. This idea is more and more being developed in modern school life. One of the most successful teachers of mathematics in Scotland was an eccentric but masterly instructor in the Madras Academy in the ancient city of St. Andrews, who used to put the problems and theorems of Euclid into rhyme, set them to music and make his pupils sing them.

Within the past decade the United States has begun to realize that play is a feature of vast importance in child life and is indeed greater, deeper and more vital than any need for books and study. Toward the close of the nineteenth century rural America began to be deserted for the city. A great tide of humanity swept away from the health-giving fields and villages. The cities grew marvelously. The overplus population of Europe began to flow into them and to congest them.

Still the rural population flowed into the city and thronged the crowded streets and lived in the smoke-begrimed tenements and forgot about the blessed life of the green fields and the streams and mountains. Cramped into those filthy tenements and the

ART EXHIBITION

The Annual Art exhibition of Colorado Boulevard school was held Friday afternoon, May 5, with excellent results shown in the work. At three o'clock the regular business meeting was held and important business was transacted. The annual election of officers took place, Mrs. Beamon being elected president, Mrs. Curtis vice-president, Mrs. Kinnaman secretary, Mrs. Puffer treasurer.

A piano solo by Miss Whittaker followed, who responded to an encore. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Chas. H. Toll of North Glendale, recently elected member of the Board of Education of Glendale Grammar schools. The subject was, "Mothers and the Children's Reading." Mrs. Toll said in part to the mothers: "Choose your reading carefully, always remembering it should be ideal to influence rightly the children's lives." She spoke of how Uncle Sam is helping in sending out carefully prepared lines of reading courses which are free to all, from the Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Toll's address showed breadth of thought combined with deep experience in educational matters, and was very helpful in suggestion and outline of reading for respective ages. At the close of the address the president, Mrs. Beamon, voiced the appreciation of all present in a few well chosen words. Light refreshments closed a pleasant afternoon. The fathers were entertained in the evening.

CALVE VISITS GLENDALE

Mme. Calve, the world-famous soprano, and her husband, Signor Gasparri, were visitors in Glendale Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brahm Van Den Berg, 1218 Chestnut street. Mme. Calve and Mr. Brahm Van Den Berg have been friends for fifteen years and during part of her tours in the United States he was her accompanist. She is now fulfilling an engagement at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, and has insisted that Mr. Van Den Berg shall be her accompanist during the term of her engagement in Los Angeles. These old friends spent a very pleasant day discussing musical matters and events in the great European war. Mme. Calve has devoted a great deal of her time and of her means to endeavoring to relieve some of the misery caused by the fighting and maintains an establishment in France where 25 little war orphans are being supported and educated.

BOY SCOUTS ORGANIZE

Tropico is to have a company of Boy Scouts. The movement for the training of boys in outdoor lore and in service has taken complete hold of the minds of many of the boys in that section and a number of them met Friday evening at the home of Robert Carmack, 715 N. Central avenue, Tropico, to constitute themselves into a Boy Scouts' organization. A considerable number of boys were present and the organization of the company was completed with the election of the following officials: Harold Benner, patrol leader; Harold Latter, assistant patrol leader; Paul Richardson, secretary; Robert Carmack, treasurer; Mr. Dwight Stephenson, scout master.

THE LAST REHEARSAL

The last rehearsal of Joseph's Bondage was held Saturday night and the large force of singers are thoroughly drilled in their respective parts for the rendition this evening at the Palace Grand theatre.

The ladies of the Aid society of the First M. E. church have labored energetically to make this important musical work a success and all music lovers and those who desire important musical works to be given in Glendale will no doubt appreciate and support their efforts. The general public will enjoy a seriously beautiful evening's entertainment with no dull moments as scene after scene depicts the fortunes of the young Joseph till he becomes ruler of Egypt.

soul-and-body-destroying flat the children suffered dreadfully. Pressed into schoolrooms where there was no room for active play, overburdened by lessons that were mere rote drills, finding no outlet for their youthful energies and the faculties that demanded fresh air and exercise, the children pined and dwindled away. They became anemic. Then they became the fathers and mothers of anemic children and gave birth to that generation from which the anomalous "gunmen" murderers of New York have sprung.

Rapidly this city race degenerated. The new generation was forgotten; the citizens of the future were ignored. Life was too strenuous and exacting in the city slums to think of the new generation except to thank God when any of its members were snatched away to an early grave. For a time it seemed as though the race in the big cities might be entirely reduced to the standard of living in Europe to escape which their fathers and mothers had fled to the United States.

Now recognition of the value of the rising generation has come. The citizens of the future, it is seen, must be conserved as well as the natural resources of the land. The cities are generally beginning to value and to conserve the strength, vitality and sanity of their men and women of tomorrow, even while they are paying in sickness, crime, vice and anarchy the price of past neglect.

One of the greatest factors in this conservation of the race is the playground. Organized play is seen to be an indispensable element in this mission of salvation. This Playground movement is spreading. It has a message for Glendale. Fortunately this city has wise men and women who have heard the voice and hearkened to it and are putting its precepts into effect.

SUBMARINES FOR POLES

Simon Lake, the noted inventor, proposes to use submarine boats for polar exploration. He recalls that Nansen found no ice in the polar waters deeper than fourteen feet. His plan is to travel under this ice, where the temperature, even in the most severe winter weather, would not be colder than the temperature of sea water. The vessel designed by him would, he says, be able to make a continuous submerged voyage of 150 miles on one charge of the storage battery.

After such a run it would be necessary to stop and recharge the batteries. If open water could be reached this recharging would be done by coming to the surface. When ice overhead is not too thick it can be broken up by blowing out the water ballast. Provision could be made for boring a hole up through the ice so as to permit the drawing in of sufficient air to run the engines and recharge the batteries. He also figures on putting out small mines under the ice to blow an opening to permit the submarine to come to the surface. He would also provide a conning tower arranged to cut its way through ice from twelve to fourteen feet thick, so that the boat could be left under the ice and permit the crew to come to the surface.

Mr. Lake is confident that progress could be made with perfect comfort and safety under the ice at a rate of speed exceeding 100 miles a day.

WHOOPI NG COUGH PARTY

Joy Willisford, little daughter of the Rev. E. H. Willisford and Mrs. Willisford, of Orange street, who has been afflicted for some time past with an attack of whooping cough, which is prevalent in the city at present, had the original idea of arranging a "whooping cough party" as the afflicted little ones are not allowed to mingle with those who are well. Those who were present were Joy Willisford, Louise Abell, Marguerite Ellis, Mary Beers, Edith Beers, Dorothy Beers and Virginia Burris. The children are slightly affected by the whooping cough as the epidemic is very mild. They had an outdoors picnic and a good time generally in the backyard of the Willisford residence.

LADIES AT WORK

It was the pleasure of the members of Glendale City W. C. T. U. to hold their regular meeting in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. B. D. Snudden, 133 S. Jackson. The devotionals were led by Mrs. Clyde Brooks, who gave a most inspiring Bible reading. A prayer service then followed.

Echoes of the thirty-second annual convention of Los Angeles County W. C. T. U. were given. Most excellent reports were given by the following ladies: Mrs. Louise Morton, Mrs. O. S. Palmer, Mrs. J. F. Chandler, Mrs. Mary Frank, Mrs. Nora Dungan, and Mrs. Francie. Some of the splendid reports are as follows: That Los Angeles County has seventy Unions and a membership of 4000.

There are forty-nine newspapers in California who refuse liquor advertisements. Glendale has the honor of claiming three of these.

Eight hundred daily newspapers refuse liquor advertisements. More than eighty per cent of the area of the United States is no-license territory, and more than sixty millions or 65 per cent of the population live under prohibitory law.

The U. S. government prohibits liquor traffic among Indians or portion of the territories, in the Navy, National Capitol, in the Soldiers' homes.

The mayor of Philadelphia has issued an order forbidding drinking while on duty by the 10,000 employees of that city.

Southern California home for women and children is supported almost wholly by the W. C. T. U. at present. Thirty-one inmates are cared for by the members, the oldest occupant being 93 years old.

Each member is requested to make one garment for babies that come into the charity wards of hospitals.

This convention, held in Hollywood, was one of the most successful W. C. T. U. convention held in Los Angeles county.

The hostess served delightful refreshments.

KANSAS PICNIC, MAY 20

The Kansas Association of Southern California will hold its annual picnic at Eastlake Park, Los Angeles, Saturday, May 20th. Picnic lunch and coffee at noon, followed by a program of music and speaking. The largest crowd of Kansans ever assembled on the Pacific Coast is expected. Come and have a good time, meet old friends and make new ones. There will be a register of each County of Kansas, so you can find people from your own County.

The picnic is under the management of Dr. J. Harvey Moore of Los Angeles, President of the Kansas Association of Southern California, and the Vice Presidents, H. S. Harvey of Pasadena, A. G. Mechem of Long Beach and W. W. Simon of Santa Ana.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY ELECTS

The annual election of officers for the Woman's Auxiliary of St. Mark's church was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Porter and the following were elected: President, Mrs. Geo. Eley; vice president, Mrs. Freeman Kelley; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. S. W. Johnson.

Mrs. Porter, president for the past two years, spoke very earnestly on missionary subjects and delegates were appointed to the annual convention held in Los Angeles at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral on May 17. The hostess afterwards served refreshments and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

OMITTED IN REPORT

In the report of the affairs of the Glendale Free Flower show given in the Glendale Evening News, Saturday, by Mr. Morris Caruthers, manager of the show, the fact that the Tropic-Presbyterian church had loaned thirty-five tables to the show was omitted.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

A new presentation of America's Scenic Masterpiece will be the theme of the program at the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon club, May 9. The program will be given by Miss Mildred Leo Clemens. Miss Clemens is a cousin of Mark Twain, a graduate of the University of California and is said to be the youngest girl lecturer. She has appeared before the largest women's clubs, leading universities, colleges, and all the leading hotels, such as Huntington, Raymond, Green, Maryland, The U. S. Grant and Hotel Del Coronado, and many others.

This lecture is fully illustrated with 4000 feet of film and 125 superbly colored stereopticon views. This program promises to be a rare treat for all lovers of the beautiful. This will be an open meeting and all who wish to attend will be welcome.

GLENDAL E ART EXHIBIT

Those who attend the Art exhibit of the Tuesday Afternoon club Art section, in the Masonic temple, Tuesday, May 9, will enjoy a rare treat. Those who have seen the Art exhibit of needle work and hand-painted china in the San Diego exposition are of the opinion that Tuesday's exhibit will be equal to it in every respect. It is distinctive, individual and characteristic of the best traditions of Glendale. The exhibitors have put their whole soul into this work. They have also arranged their articles in attractive form in the clubrooms of the Temple. There are specimens of needle work from all over the world, china painting, water colors and many antique articles. No one who is interested in art can afford to miss this exhibition.

If you would find the magical strand Of the sculptors' garden in Fairyland,

If you would tread the beautiful way

Where children of dreams delight to play

To elfin pipes would harken and hear

Till the glad days dance down the singing year,

Would enter the garden that has no key,

No gate to unlock and to pay, no fee,

Would follow the path to the glad-some Art—

Then must you come with a childlike heart.

For a childlike heart is the one demand

Of Heaven, of Art and of Fairyland.

—Stella George Stern Perry (In Little Bronze Playfellow).

THE ALUMNI SCHOLARSHIP FUND

"Every shoulder to the wheel for the scholarship fund!" This is the slogan of the High School Alumni Association which is presenting "The Voice of Conscience" at the Palace Grand theatre on next Thursday and Friday evenings.

"We are working together as one person," says Miss Emily Elias, president of the association. "Petty differences have been forgotten. Old-time rivalry of classes has been thrown aside before the paramount issue. We are working tirelessly to make this play the best dramatic venture ever staged in Glendale. It is a means to an end—a High School scholarship founded by High School Alumni."

"We have secured for the first presentation on any stage a play by a local playwright. More than that, the author is a graduate of Glendale High School. We are having prepared the best scenery obtainable. We have engaged the service of one of the most experienced and skilful directors in the theatrical profession, Mr. Willis Marks. We are doing everything possible to make the means worthy of the end."

"One year ago we produced 'Polly of the Circus,' our first annual play. With the odds against us, we netted a substantial sum. We hope to do much better this year. With your co-operation we can do much better."

"We solicit your support. Glendale High School is a magnificent institution. It is splendidly efficient, a potent force for the betterment of this community. Its welfare is of interest, directly or indirectly, to every resident of the district. Help us, who have received our full share of the benefits which it confers upon those who attend it, to make it more powerful, more efficient. Every shoulder to the wheel for the Alumni Scholarship Fund!"

COMPLIMENT MISS BORTHICK

Mrs. Warren Roberts of 707 West Seventh street entertained very charmingly last Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Ruby Borthick, who is to be an autumn bride. The affair was in the nature of a miscellaneous shower and came as a surprise to the bride-elect. When the ladies had all arrived the hostess divided the company in two parts with Miss Ruby Borthick and Miss Mae Cornwell as leaders. All were provided with tea towels and the contest to see which side could hem the allotted number in the shortest time was on. Miss Borthick's side proved to be the prize winners and soon the hostess appeared with a tray on which were piled numerous neatly wrapped packages which she presented to the surprised guest of honor. Miss Borthick opened the packages and found many beautiful gifts. At the close of the afternoon the hostess served a lovely luncheon.

Decorations of American beauty roses were used in the rooms thrown open to the guests and added much to the pleasure of the afternoon. Those who were invited to this compliment this popular bride-to-be were Mesdames Hazen, Collins, Henry Story, Elijah Zerr, Albert Cornwell, Edward Daniels, J. W. McFadden, A. M. Beamon, Misses Ruby and Fredonia oBrthick, Lillian and Birdie Shropshire, Mae and Carrie Cornwell, Gertrude Barnes, Angie Zerr, Cora Ward, Lillian Eaton, Eula Richardson and the hostess.

The guests were members of the X. V. I. club and a few friends. The club will hold their next meeting at the home of Mrs. Henry Storey, 233 Angeleno avenue, Burbank, May 27.

LECTURE ON THE BIBLE

Earl A. Rowell, who is a well-known lecturer on up-to-date topics, spoke in the First Lutheran church, Sunday morning, on the topic, "How We Got Our Bible." Mr. Rowell told of his own change from scepticism to Christianity and gave an interesting and graphic sketch of the manner in which the manuscripts of the Scriptures had been written and discovered and where they are now kept. He made a strong appeal to all to read the Bible affirming the veritable Word of God. A large congregation heard the lecturer with attention and profit.

GLENDALE FOOTHILLS

One of the most delightful affairs held at La Ramada this season was the dinner given recently by Mr. and Mrs. Salo Desky, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Rich, who have been touring Southern California but who will leave soon for their home in Syracuse, N. Y. Other guests who were seated at the beautifully appointed table under the arbor were Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Blough of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Kranz and little Miss Barbara Kranz.

Casa Verdugo was the scene of a most enjoyable dinner party of distinguished parties on Sunday when Mrs. Montgomery of Los Angeles entertained Mme. Pasquale of the Metropolitan Opera of New York, and six other prominent members of the musical world.

Another dinner party at Casa Verdugo was that of Mrs. Alexander of Hollywood, who entertained a large party of her friends in one of the beautiful arbors in the grounds. Sunday was a busy day at the cafe. The tables outside and inside were full all day and evening with guests.

Monday, May 8, will be a busy day at Casa Verdugo. On that date the Native Sons of Los Angeles and their friends hold their annual summer banquet at this popular cafe. Fifty persons will sit down to dinner on that occasion.

John Sharpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Sharpe, 111 N. Central avenue, was injured by a fall in the mountains, Sunday afternoon. He and a companion, Maurice Jackson, went up the hills for an outing. When climbing up a particularly steep place the ground gave way under young Sharpe's feet and he fell a considerable distance, breaking his ankle and snapping one of the bones of his hand. He also badly strained his right side. His companion, Maurice Jackson, carried him on his back a distance of more than a mile until aid was procured.

Hoarce and Gordon McRae, 1321 Dryden street, devised and carried out a pleasant "wiener roast" party, Saturday, in the spacious lot of the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McRae. Their guests were Masters Harold Kirker, Ronald West and David Kelley. The youthful playmates had a pleasant afternoon with all manner of games.

P. H. Collins, 410 Central avenue, Tropico, moved to 1557 Seventh avenue, Los Angeles.

TWO WORLD'S RECORDS SMASHED

Students at the University of Southern California got enough thrills to last them a lifetime when they saw two world's records shattered and another equalled at the last track meet of the season on Boverd field. "King" Fred Kelly completed his career as a runner by breaking the world's record for the low hurdles on a curved track. Eight High School students from Manual Arts in Los Angeles then proceeded to reduce their own relay record by one-fifth of a second. Earl Thomson, a phenomenal runner from Long Beach, wound up the day's events by equalling the world's record, held by Fred Kelly, of fifteen seconds in the high hurdles.

NEW TRACK CAPTAIN

Because he can run about as fast as any young man in the whole world, and is a "good fellow" too, Clarence Beebe, of Anaheim, will be captain of the track team at the University of Southern California next year. He was elected by the members of the team at the conclusion of the 1916 season. Beebe, while a student at the Anaheim High School, broke the world's interscholastic record for the half mile and the California record for the mile, and this year he broke the California record for the 880-yard run, appearing under the colors of the A. A. U., as he was ineligible to represent the University this season, having been a student at the University of California last year.

POTATO PUFFS

Take about four potatoes, or enough to make three tablespoonfuls when mashed; salt them, then add two eggs beaten separately, one teaspoon of dry mustard, one teaspoon of baking powder, one half cup of sweet milk, flour to thicken stiffly. Drop from a teaspoon in hot cottolene and cook to a golden brown.

MY RESULTS

"The best and most satisfactory optical work we have ever received."—Mr. and Mrs. James Neill of 1226 Lomita Avenue, Glendale, "Two of the best known Stars in their Profession."

Mr. A. M. Stewart of San Gabriel, Calif., came to me with three pairs of glasses which were from some of the best in Los Angeles. He proved to be one of the hardest cases on record. Is now enjoying comfort never before thought of. He is a U. S. mail carrier, and a familiar face in Glendale.

Mr. B. Gorman, 767 S. Louise St., camera operator with the Kalem Company, came to me suffering with headaches and in great distress. Had never worn glasses before. Since prescribing a pair of Scientific Violet Ray Glasses does not know what a headache feels like.

Last, but not least, Glendale's best known barber, Christ. J. Orff, has had Eye trouble all his life. I have enabled him to perform his work better than ever before.
